ized labor prepared their strategy
Monday for a final allout assault on the Scranton administration's proposed unemployment compensation pro-meeting to consider changes in the Scranton bill which Republican leaders hoped would make it more palatable to opponents.

Majority Leader James S. Berger, R-Potter, said he hoped to get the bill through the Senate this week, if possible. "OLD CARNIVAL TRICK"

"We have to face up to the issue sometime," he said. "We might as well do it now."

Senate Minority Leader Charles R. Weiner, D-Philadelphia, meanwhile, issued a statement accusing Gov. Scranton of "trying to prune a tree with a bulldozer" in his drive to revise the state unemployment compensation system.

"It's the old carnival trick of giving a person back his own money and then charging him double for the pleasure of being robbed," Weiner declared.

The Republican caucus last week reached tentative agreement on three major changes in the Scranton program and gave several others substantial consideration.

The governor told his weekly news conference amendments to his bill would be acceptable to him as long as they did not destroy three objectives. They are rebuilding the unemployment compensation fund, closing loopholes in the present law, and bringing the state program in line with those in other states to attract new industry.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson is the man in the middle in the civil rights fight starting in the Senate. It wasn't like this a few years ago.

As the summer of 1955 wore on he had plenty of time to wonder what the future held for him. He was recovering from a heart attack but felt far from finished.

It soon became clear a heart condition didn't have to be a political handicap for within a few weeks President Dwight D. Eisenhower had an attack, too, and recovered to go on being an active president.

SET FURIOUS PACE

Johnson returned to his job as the Democrats' Senate leader and in the last four years of Eisenhower's administration set a pace so furious and distinguished he decided he might even be able to be president

In those years two of his outstanding achievements were getting a civil rights bill through in 1957, the first in this century, and another in 1960.

Johnson, a Southerner, did this over the opposition of Southern Democrats but these two measures never entirely satisfied anybody. They were compromises, stripped of sections irritated Southerners

NOT SAME SITUATION

Now, four years later, it's another election year, with Johnson hoping for a full, four-year term for himself. Once more a civil rights bill, backed by him, is before the Senate. The situation is not the same.

In the past getting any kind of civil rights bill passed, even though watered down, was considered quite an achievement even if not perfect. But Johnson is president now, not just a Senate leader. He has given full endorsement

COOPERATIVE COOPERATION?

During recent months a series of meetings has been held among the four major milk-marketing ecoperatives serving the New York-New Jersey milkshed. Purpose: To discuss methods to assure that member producers would not be charged a service fee (up to 10¢ per cwt) to have bulk tank milk hauled to plants, as now allowed under amended marketing orders.

Since these meetings, irresponsible charges have been made that Eastern Milk Producers failed to cooperate in these discussions... that this perennial maverick "picked up its marbles again." Fact is, Eastern participated fully in every meeting and, far from picking up any marbles, laid down six basic principles to protect producers' interests and prices.

If you haven't heard about this, it's because the other three groups (Dairymen's League, Metropolitan and Mutual) voted to bar reporters from the meetings. This closed-door policy (opposed by Eastern) did little to enhance the public image of cooperatives and was rightly criticized as "a distinct disservice to their members" in an editorial in the Syracuse Herald-

For the record: At these meetings, the other groups proposed setting up an "escrow fund," obligating their members to contribute financial aid (over $25,000) to employ a super-marketing agency to handle the milk of members threatened with a hauling service charge. This program

Eastern knew that the proposed agency was intended to do a job a cooperative is already paid to handle. Rather than impose this unnecessary financial burden on its members, Eastern proposed to enforce farm-point pricing of all bulk tank milk without hauling charge via the following six-point program:

2. Operating co-ops as well as bargaining co-ops shall be parties to such agreement. 4. All co-ops will help obtain amendment to New England orders for farm-point priding

5. Foderations shall agree that all member co-ops are bound individually to agreeme

6. Cooperative group action, rather than creation of a new bargaining agency, shall be taken to achieve goals; and each co-op is responsible for expenses involved in enforcing farm-point pricing among its members.

All six points were rejected. The biggest bone in the throat of the other groups was Eastern's insistence that each group guarantee its members full blend price...like Eastern. They said they would not and could not do this.

What then is the value of their program? Why set up still another dairy group, costing members over $25,000, to assure producers they'll not be assessed a service charge when these groups already admit no control over member operating co-ops? This is a camouflage campaign to cover the fact that operating co-ops have not paid members full blend price in the past and state frankly they cannot guarantee it in the future.

Eastern considers this program a reckless, ill-advised venture that can eventually undermine both bulk tank and Class III pricing provisions of the order. While Eastern owns no surplus plants, it is financially strong and can readily build them should they be needed. Through firm agreements with existing plants and without "mortgaging" our membership for surplus facilities, Eastern guarantees to market members' milk at full blend price for the coming year . . . and to perate fully with all producer groups to achieve farm-point pricing.

Isn't this the responsibility of a milk-marketing cooperative itself?

1. Each co-op will assure members minimum blend price.

2. No raiding of another cooperative's members.

(Continued From Page 1) only manifested indecent haste to present their bills to the military authorities for the payment of losses inflicted by both armies." The ministers replied "On July 5 when Mr. L. L. Crounse left Gettysburg for Frederick almost every private dwelling and every warehouse and public building was a hospital. Some private dwellings had more than 50 wounded soldiers quartered in them, nursed and attended almost exclusively by members of the family.

Many of them (people of Gettysburg) gave almost their entire stock of underclothing, stockings, handkerchiefs, etc., to render comfortable the warworn, weary and wounded who fell into their hands."

GAVE BREAD, BUTTER

The ministers' letter stated that "Miss Dix and her lady nurses" obtained board at the home of Henry Rupp, and that the people of the town, despite the fact that the rebels had taken almost all supplies of grain and flour and driven off every cow for army beef, gave thousands of loaves of bread and crocks of butter to the wounded soldiers "while the children of some cried for bread for the first time in their lives."

Describing the situation caused by thousands of dead soldiers, horses and mules and broken materials of war of every description, Roth said, "A brief notice appearing in the Adams Sentinel of July 7, 1863, best illustrates what Gettysburg was like following the battle. The notice read: "To All Citizens: Men, horses and wagons are wanted immediately to bury the dead and to cleanse our streets in such a thorough way as to guard against a pestilence. Every good citizen can be of use by reporting himself, at once, to Capt. W. W. Smith, acting provost marshal, office, northeast corner of Centre Square."
